

Creating tomorrow's abortion providers and pro-choice physicians

To the Deans of Medical Schools in Texas,

On June 24th, 2022, The Supreme Court of the United States dismantled the landmark Roe v. Wade decision that protects a pregnant person's liberty to access abortion care without excessive government restrictions. As a result, 50 states will be asked to legislate or litigate whether individuals have a protected right to determine whether or not to continue a pregnancy. The recent passage of TX SB8 and SB4 into law has essentially banned abortion in Texas and forecasts a frightening future for communities throughout the state.

As medical students and educators, we are deeply concerned about the negative impact abortion restrictions and bans may have on medical education. We are worried that medical students will not graduate with the skills necessary to care for future patients. As we are sure you know, abortion is common, and one in four people who can become pregnant will have an abortion in their lifetimes. Leading organizations in the medical profession, including the AAFP, ACOG, and APGO recommend that medical students receive education in comprehensive reproductive health decision making, which includes abortion care. ACOG specifically recommends that medical students graduate knowing how to support patients in their decision making about pregnancy, including nondirective options counseling with comprehensive information about abortion; this counseling requires a complete understanding of abortion so that providers can educate patients. Moreover, to better serve our communities, students must understand the public health impacts of legal abortion and the importance of access to abortion care.

We request that through your authority as Deans, you affirm your institution's support for abortion and family planning education and training and confirm the school's intention to continue abortion education and training as part of the core curriculum. We ask that you consider creative ways for students to obtain this critical education. We ask that you leverage your and the institution's power to advocate against restrictive abortion laws.

By publicly affirming commitment to abortion and family planning education, you will be supporting not only current students but also prospective students who are seeking the best medical education foundation for their careers.

Thank you for your prompt attention to our request.
